Cyber Hacks: Is this Adware or Spyware?

Adware and spyware are both forms of malware that can infect your computer without your knowledge. Both are malicious software programs that you should prevent by using an antivirus solution to detect and block spyware and adware.

Here are a few facts:

Adware is software that sends you advertisements based on your internet browsing that it has tracked. The purpose of the adware software is to show unwanted pop-up advertisements on the device which has the malicious software downloaded. Often, though adware may be considered harmless, it may have spyware built into it. This leads to much greater issues and potential damage.

Spyware is designed to run in the background of the device, which has the software downloaded and gradually retrieves all the information stored in that device, such as web history, browsing history, images, videos, passwords, and other credential information as well.

Tips on how to prevent Adware and Spyware:

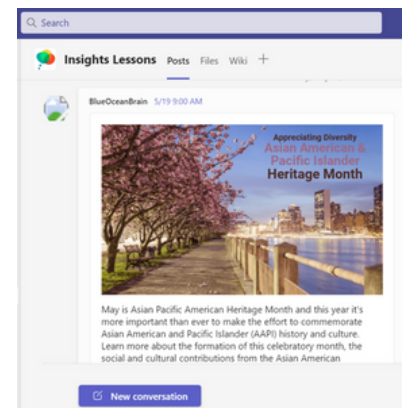

- Avoid clicking in pop-up advertisements links
- Activate pop-blocker if available
- Be cautious while browsing the internet and only visit trusted websites
- Avoid suspicious link and downloading attachment from unknown senders
