Hurricane Ian Employee Donation Info Coming Soon

Hurricane Ian brought dangerous conditions to parts of Florida last week. We can report our branches are intact and all employees are accounted for. As the Florida branches are still in recovery mode, we will continue to offer our support to the team.

Currently, we are coordinating a program that will allow employees to make donations to the Brink's Florida families who lost their homes and have immediate needs. Please be on the lookout for the donation announcement on how you can help!

Thank you to everyone who worked tirelessly to keep our teams safe. We appreciate your commitment, support and willingness to help!

Insights: Working with a World of Cultures

According to Erin Meyer, a professor at INSEAD and author of The Culture Map: Breaking Through the Invisible Boundaries of Global Business, when managers from different parts of the world negotiate, they frequently misread unspoken signals, reach erroneous conclusions, and unwittingly kill a deal. She's come up with five rules for negotiating with someone whose cultural communication is different from your own:

- Adapt the way you express disagreement
- Know whether the culture is emotionally expressive
- Discover how other cultures build trust
- Avoid yes/no questions
- Be careful about summarizing conversations

Pro Tip: Before meeting with a counterpart from another culture, do a deep dive into what that culture is like, but be careful to stay away from stereotypes.

Cyber Hacks: Downloading Malicious Apps

Malicious apps can be trojans that cleverly pose as apps that people commonly search for, such as QR code scanners, fitness apps, and a bevy of other popular types of utilities.

In fact, these phony apps contain trojans that are designed to steal banking information, harvest keystrokes as you enter account info, and even grab screenshots of what you are doing on your phone. Once downloaded, the malicious applications spoof other apps to rack up digital ad views.

Best Practice Tips:

- To prevent malicious apps and programs from installing, you can select to disallow the installation of programs from unauthorized and unknown sources
- Only download apps from a trusted store (Google Play, Apple App Store or Amazon)
- Check the star rating of the app before downloading
- Avoid phony apps that charge a subscription and offer no protection in return
- Remove apps that you no longer need or use
