Cyber Hacks: Spoofing Attacks

Phone Spoofing is a “social engineering technique that can be done through a phone scam” where the caller intentionally falsifies the caller ID information to disguise their identity. Spoofing aims to trick you into answering the phone and giving away your personal information, money, or access to your devices.

How to spot & prevent phone spoofing:

- Be wary of unknown callers
- Check the caller ID
- Be suspicious of urgent or threatening calls
- Verify requests for information
- Use call-blocking tools
- Never give away personal information

Scam alert of the month:

The recent trend for scammers is to use area codes that resemble local numbers to trick people into answering their phone calls. The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) has warned people to be cautious and not answer unfamiliar calls, especially those from suspicious area codes. The article below provides a list of the top 10 area codes that scammers use, based on FTC data.

Check out the links below and attached document to learn more about caller ID spoofing and area codes!
