

MARCH 4, 2024

Celebrating Women's History Month & Inspiring Inclusion

We are excited to begin a time of celebration, recognition, and empowerment in March, Women's History Month.

Over the next few weeks, we will honor the contributions of women at Brink's, as well as international trailblazers in the fields of business, education, entertainment, health, sports and more in a special section of the Dashboard News.

Additionally on March 7, the Women's Resource Network ERG will recognize International Women's Day (IWD) with a company-wide event featuring author Gifty Enright. She joins us to share her advice on making space for mental health and wellness in the workplace. Please plan to join us Thursday for more insight into this important topic.

This year's meaningful IWD theme of "Inspire Inclusion" also reminds us that when we work to inspire others and understand the value of women's inclusion, we help create a more equitable and diverse world. Later this month, we will share a global collage of our Brink's teams proudly displaying their IWD signs and heart poses as we stand together and honor inclusivity for women. Please be sure to submit your team photos by March 15 to: wrn@brinksinc.com

Thanks for your support as we continue our efforts to build a diverse and inclusive workplace environment where everyone can succeed.

Cyber Hacks: Be Cautious When Using Social Media

Social Media platforms facilitate the sharing of ideas and information among users through virtual networks and communities. Social Media Security takes center stage because social networks are the most crucial elements of any person or organization's online presence.

The rising social media security risks and challenges have made organizations cautious against these social networking platforms. Social media platforms are a minefield for cybercriminals to utilize information that is shared and use them for phishing attack and social engineering surveillance techniques, making people more vulnerable.

Tips to Protect Yourself When Using Social Media:

- Avoid oversharing - Posting personal or workplace information provides the information cybercriminals need to create more realistic phishing attacks or commit identity theft.
 - Avoid public Wi-Fi - Using social media via untrusted, public Wi-Fi hotspots is a significant risk because public Wi-Fi is more susceptible to hackers intercepting communications.
 - Reject unknown friend requests in social media - Cybercriminals can send friend requests with an authentic-looking account that has mutual friends, hoping users will accept to initiate a social engineering attack. Cybercriminals also use compromised accounts to target users from a legitimate source, attempting to steal data or money.
